

This is a story about finding a Way. Any Way. You can share the Way or you can show the Way, and there are many different Ways. Some Ways are better for some. Other Ways are better for others. The important thing is that you find the Way that is best for you. This is the idea shared in this beautiful picture book about a young explorer's journey. Gorgeous illustrations leave the readers imagination plenty of room to find their own Way through this uniquely narrated tale.

Martin Finds a Way

ISBN: 9781486709441

Trim Size: 8.75" x 11.25"

Format: Dust Jacket, 32 Pages

SRP: $16.99

Ages: 7-9

Grades: 2-3

GRL: N

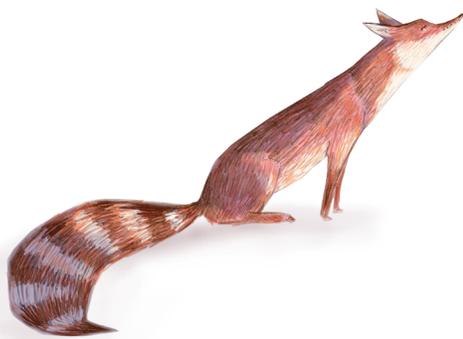

Lexile: 590L

BISAC: JUV046000, JUV039220, JUV043000

“Readers...should grasp the idea that there are a great many avenues and attitudes through which to approach life.”
—Publishers Weekly

“...this extended play on words is likely to spark both discussion and rumination.”
—Kirkus Reviews

“‘Martin Finds a Way’ is a life-embracing book, a meaningful, highly enjoyable work deserving of a special place on children’s bookshelves in homes, classrooms, and libraries for generations to come.”
—Tillywig

T. H. Marshall was born in England to Irish parents. He grew up in Canada and now lives in Nashville, TN. The son of a children’s publisher, he was an avid reader growing up. His career started in publishing, but took a brief turn into the music business. He has since returned to children’s books and says he plans to stay here—and hopefully do some more writing. After his own unique journey, he feels he has found the Way that works for him!

Katarzyna Bukiert is from the beautiful medieval town of Grudziadz, Poland. She has studied everything from medicine to photography, and in her spare time she enjoys training in a Japanese style of archery called “kyudo.” She finds inspiration for her illustrations from her young daughter, and she hopes that her work will help children appreciate the gift of reading.